

CHALLENGING TIMES ON THE FRONT LINES

Working on the front lines is profoundly rewarding but exceptionally demanding. Long hours, remaining objective through countless traumas, and helping patients and families in their most fragile moments take a significant toll. Beyond pandemics, front line workers face increasing rates of medication resistant infections, opioid related emergencies, and other work-related traumas. Traditional struggles such as equitable pay, high student loan debt, and growing insurance premiums add to the stress. For law enforcement, military personnel, firefighters, emergency medical personnel, corrections officers, dispatchers, parole and probation officers, and healthcare professionals who are already at high risk for substance use disorders and suicide, the need for effective and accessible mental healthcare has never been greater.

PRESERVING LIFE IS THE GREATEST HONOR

FIRST RESPONDERS, MEMBERS OF THE MILITARY, AND HEALTHCARE PROFESSIONALS WORK RELENTLESSLY TO HELP OTHERS. HERE, WE HELP THEM DO THE HARDEST WORK OF ALL — TRANSFORMING THE ADVERSITY OF MENTAL HEALTH AND SUBSTANCE USE DISORDERS INTO THE STRENGTH AND RESILIENCE WITH WHICH TO SAVE THEMSELVES, THEIR FAMILIES, PARTNERS, AND COMMUNITIES.

While substance use disorders, PTSD, and suicide are prevalent among these professionals, appropriate treatment is exceedingly rare and can be difficult to access. The Futures Recovery Healthcare Hero's Ascent program offers first responders, military personnel, and healthcare professionals safe, relevant, and effective treatment in a comfortable and discreet setting.

A TEAM THAT UNDERSTANDS THE JOB

The Futures' Hero's Ascent veterans, first responders, and healthcare professionals program utilizes insights and ongoing guidance from some of the nation's leading first responder, military, and healthcare mental health advocates. These advisory board members, experienced thought leaders in their respective fields, champion individual, organizational, and policy solutions to address trauma, addiction, and suicide among first responders, military personnel, and healthcare professionals.

DESIGNED TO HELP THE FRONT LINE FEEL AT EASE

Responders, military personnel, and healthcare professionals face unique barriers to seeking care. Many have trepidations related to mandatory reporting requirements and organizational ideology. Others worry about encountering people they know at local treatment providers. Futures offers partnership and safety to make treatment accessible, comfortable, and effective. Our experienced care team can help clients manage work-related issues and facilitate paperwork and communication with employers, insurers, and other agencies to help clients focus on treatment and make it easier to return to work. Located on a private, nine-acre gated campus in Tequesta, Florida, clients can expect discretion, and a safe space to relax, work with experienced professionals, and heal. Our spacious environment and high staff-to-client ratio provide ample privacy and allow the treatment team to individualize care. Comfortably appointed single bedrooms and bathrooms, nutritious chef-prepared meals, and an on-campus swimming pool, a fitness center, tennis courts, and other amenities help clients feel at ease and at home.

HIGH-QUALITY HOLISTIC TREATMENT, FAMILY PROGRAMMING, AND PEER-SUPPORT

Futures Recovery Healthcare is accredited by The Joint Commission, employs highly skilled and trained clinicians, and uses evidence-based therapies. Our Hero's Ascent program focuses on identifying and addressing underlying trauma, chronic pain, and other issues shared by first responders, military members, and healthcare professionals. The program's coordinated and personalized care plans incorporate medical treatment, psychotherapy, experiential therapy, somatic experiencing, sleep assistance, and wellness services. Family programming is an integral part of the Hero's Ascent program. Therapy and education are provided to help family members address their mental health needs and learn to support their loved one's recovery. Futures strives to help frontline workers find like-mindedness, camaraderie, and support by connecting with peers in recovery. Our thriving alumni community is a source of ongoing inspiration and connection.

EDUCATION AND TRAINING FOR POSITIVE CHANGE

Futures is working to increase the awareness and accessibility of military- and responder-informed treatment. Our annual "The Enemy Within": International Symposium on Law Enforcement and First Responder Stress, PTSD, and Suicide unites the nation's leading first responder and military mental health advocates to discuss individual, organizational, and policy solutions to the problems of trauma, addiction, and suicide. Members of the symposium's advisory board provide mental healthcare and suicide-prevention training and education to first-responder and military organizations and policymakers nationwide.
